- (ii) requests for explanation given during oral addresses under the conditions set out in this Section;
 - b) the number of addresses by one shareholder is not limited, but the total duration of all their addresses may not exceed 10 minutes;
 - c) a shareholder wishing to deliver an address in the course of this round is entitled to apply at any time until the end of this round, unless otherwise specified below;
 - d) shareholders shall be invited to deliver their address consecutively by the order of application;
 - e) the board of directors or a person authorized by the board of directors shall provide an explanation based on the requests for explanation submitted either after the request for explanation has been submitted as part of the oral address of the shareholder or subsequently following the submission of more requests for explanation;
 - f) the chairman of the general meeting is obligated to give the floor to the board of directors for explanation whenever they request so, but must not do so during a shareholder's address; such explanation by the board of directors shall be followed by other shareholder addresses by the order of application;
 - g) the chairman of the general meeting (with the approval of the board of directors) may, taking into account the maximum duration of the general meeting pursuant to Section 3, determine the time after which the shareholders will no longer be able to apply for their addresses;
 - h) the second round shall be completed by providing explanations to all requests for explanation, provided that no more shareholders are applied for their addresses; the chairman of the general meeting is entitled, upon a reasoned request of a shareholder or a group of shareholders, after considering these reasons and taking into account the maximum duration of the general meeting pursuant to Section 3, to decide after discussing with the board of directors, that before the voting commences, shareholders may still deliver their addresses and submit brief requests for explanation for a certain period of time (usually no longer than 30 minutes).
12. Providing explanations. Explanations may be provided in the form of a consolidated response to multiple requests for explanation of similar content. The board of directors shall provide an explanation of matters concerning the general meeting directly at the general meeting. If impossible given the complexity of the explanation, the company will provide the explanation to the shareholder within 15 days following the date the general meeting is held. An explanation is deemed as provided to the shareholder even if the information was published on the company's website no later than the day preceding the day of the general meeting and is available to the shareholders at the place of the general meeting. The chairman of the general meeting may, in agreement with the board of directors, allow the provision of explanations also within the preceding item of the agenda to the request for explanation if it relates to this item.
13. Representatives of multiple shareholders. A representative (including a member of a statutory body) of multiple shareholders shall be considered as a single shareholder for the purposes of the restrictions set out in Sections 5 to 11. However, if the representative represents at least one shareholder and is themselves a shareholder, the time limit referred to in Section 10 (b) and the limit referred to in Section 10 (c) shall apply separately to an address delivered in the first round of discussing requests for explanation in their own name and to an address delivered in this round on behalf of the represented shareholder(s).

14. Chairman of the general meeting. The chairman of the general meeting:
 - a) is obligated to ensure that the general meeting is acquainted with all submissions made duly and timely by the shareholders;
 - b) shall ensure dignified and undisturbed course of the general meeting;
 - c) is in exceptional cases entitled (after discussion with the board of directors) to relieve a specific shareholder from the time limit or to allow time or other limitations to be exceeded if necessary for serious reasons beyond the control of the shareholder concerned;
 - d) is entitled to direct shareholder addresses, forbid them to speak or enter into their address (for example, in the case of manifestly repetitive inquiries or to specify the content of a shareholder's address).
15. Voting. At the time of voting, first the proposal of the board of directors is voted on, followed by the proposal of the supervisory board and then on proposals and counterproposals of shareholders in the order in which they were submitted; this shall not apply if, pursuant to Section 367 or 369 of the Business Corporations Act, the item has been placed on the agenda of the general meeting at the request of the shareholders mentioned in Section 365 of the Business Corporations Act when the proposal of shareholders is first voted on. Once a submitted proposal is approved, no other proposals or counterproposals opposing the approved proposals are voted on.
16. Proposals and counterproposals of shareholders. If a shareholder intends to make a proposal or counterproposal to matters of the agenda of the general meeting, they are obligated to deliver it to the company in writing at the latest ten days prior to the general meeting; this shall not apply in the case of proposals and counterproposals for the election or removal of specific persons to/from the company body, or related proposals and counterproposals concerning such persons (e.g. a proposal for approval of a service contract). Proposals and counterproposals received after this deadline will not be discussed at the general meeting; this is without prejudice to Section 362 of the Business Corporations Act.
17. Voting method. Voting takes place by means of ballots according to instructions given by the chairman of the general meeting. In the ballot, each shareholder makes its choice for a proposed resolution that is voted on by crossing "FOR" or "AGAINST" and signs the ballot. If a shareholder wishes to abstain from voting, he/she/it does not submit the ballot.
18. Invalidity and loss of ballots. Unsigned ballots are invalid. Ballots that do not allow identifying the shareholder's choice are also invalid. If a shareholder submits an invalid ballot or a ballot other than the one that should have been used for voting on the given item, the shareholder is deemed to abstain from voting. Should a mistake occur when filling in the ballot papers by crossing the incorrect value, a scrutinizer must be asked for assistance. Such scrutinizer transforms the cross to an asterisk and, by his/her legible signature placed under the shareholder's (representative's) signature, he/she confirms such adjustment. Should a ballot be lost, attendance takers or a scrutinizer will be asked to issue a duplicate. A record stating that a duplicate was issued is required.

19. Voting evaluation. The scrutinizer(s) ensure that ballots are collected in the ballot box and that votes are counted immediately after voting. As soon as it is determined that the number of votes required for a decision on the proposed matter have been achieved, the chairman of the general meeting is to be notified by the scrutinizers of such preliminary voting result. The counting of the remaining votes of shareholders continues and shareholders shall be informed of the final results of voting on the individual items on the agenda no later than at the end of the general meeting.
20. Protests against a resolution of the general meeting. Shareholders, directors, and supervisory board members may lodge a protest concerning a general meeting resolution. Shareholders cannot claim a general meeting's resolution invalid unless a reasoned protest has been filed against the general meeting's resolution, unless the petitioner failed to file the protest for a serious reason.

Should a supervisory board member elected by employees die, resign, be recalled by employees, or should his/her service be terminated otherwise during his/her term of service or in the period from his/her election to the effective date of the election, he/she shall be replaced by the next substitute member with the highest number of votes obtained in the election of supervisory board members to be elected by company employees. If there is no such substitute member, the board of directors must call the election of a new supervisory board member to be elected by employees no later than one month after the termination of the service of the supervisory board member elected by employees.
8. A supervisory board member may resign by virtue of a written statement delivered to the company (addressed to the supervisory board). The resigning supervisory board member will cease to serve upon the expiry of one month following the delivery thereof to the company, unless the supervisory board approves a different termination date at the resigning supervisory board member's request. The supervisory board must notify the board of directors of the resignation of a supervisory board member without undue delay.
